

ALAFLOW

ABOUT

ALAFLOW is an American electronic music duo consisting of Christian Newkirk and Carson Friedline. They formed in 2016 while studying at the University of California, Santa Barbara.

After graduating in 2018, they moved to the San Francisco Bay Area and found their stride playing at SF clubs like The Midway, Audio, and Public Works; as well as releasing music with Box of Cats, Space Yacht, and House of Hustle. In 2021, the two moved to LA to attend Icon Collective, where they spent a year honing their craft, collaborating with other artists, and playing at festivals and nightclubs across California.

Looking forward, the duo is focused on taking the project to new heights by leaning into their experimental sound design, darker melodies, and driving basslines; while also exploring the use of world percussion and grooves. In this world of ever-changing music, you will always find a great time in going with the flow alongside these two.
